Paul Norris's new instrumental CD 'Warmth of the Night' embodies a wonderful ambiance. "A trip to Spain to see the birth of my hand-crafted guitar is what you hear on this CD," Paul says. His collection of 14 original compositions, expertly performed, recorded and produced by the composer make "Warmth of the Night" an immediate stand-out CD release.

"It's all about the sound of the instrument and my original compositions recorded with no fancy digital production gimmicks. It's fresh, timeless and original."

Paul's musical influences of pop, light jazz, folk, rock, classical and Spanish make 'Warmth of the Night' a world-class recording and a genuinely unique listening experience.

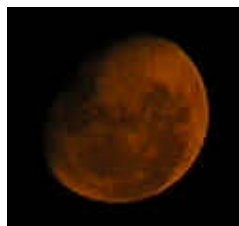

. The clarity of this recording on Spanish guitar makes it an outstanding guitar 'chill out' CD. Yet there is so much more depth and richness here as well.

Wonderful original tunes and musical structures that hook the listener, interwoven with beautiful tones and colours of the instrument. Together these evoke a feeling of intimacy on this recording that makes it highly seductive.

"While I certainly consider "Warmth of the Night" a contemporary recording, I feel I've built a bridge here between popular and classical music that makes it truly modern and unique. And yet with that some of the sounds take me back somewhere," says Paul.

"For instance there's something about the tracks "Apres Le Jour", "Soft Echoes" and "Spanish Moon" that still give me goose bumps when I play them. Perhaps I've tapped into the out-pouring of a century-old troubadour's ghost - An inspired soul who maybe once regularly played after midnight, often serenading his lover, in a side street of Valencia or Seville..!"
